

Philippines' Armed Forces Called Into Services of Nation

President Issues Call From Hyde Park Home Early This Morn

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 26—(AP)—President Roosevelt called into the armed services of the United States today all of the "organized military forces" of the Philippine government.

There was no immediate official explanation of this step, but it was generally regarded as another indication of United States displeasure at Japan's southward moves in the Pacific.

It followed the freezing of Japanese credits in this country as reply to Japan's occupation of southern Indo-China.

The Philippine military forces are to be placed under an American army officer with the rank of general, who will designate the times when the individual units and personnel shall be taken into the American armed services.

All naval components are to be under the command of the sixteenth United States naval district.

As commander-in-chief of the army and navy, Roosevelt issued a military order to accomplish the mustering of the insular forces into those of the United States.

The order said he acted under authority granted by the United States Constitution, the Philippine independence act and an ordinance appended to the Philippine constitution.

Marshall to Explain
White House officials said General George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, probably would explain the calling out of the Philippine forces at a press conference in Washington.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said in Washington Thursday that the Japanese occupation of naval and air bases in Indo-China had led the United States government to conclude that "the action of Japan is undertaken because of the estimated value to Japan of bases in that region primarily for the purposes of further and more obvious movements of conquest in adjacent areas."

While the developments in the Pacific "bear directly upon the vital problem of our national security," Welles said, "the steps which the Japanese government has taken also endanger the safety of other areas of the Pacific including the Philippine islands."

FOR ISLANDS' DEFENSE

Washington, July 26—(AP)—President Roosevelt's order putting forces of the Philippine commonwealth under American command was authorized by terms of the Tydings-McDuffie independence act under which the islands are scheduled to receive their political freedom in 1946.

The order made upwards of 150,000 trained and partially trained Filipinos immediately subject to orders of Major General George Grunert, the Philippine department commander, for defense of the Far Eastern archipelago.

Included were some 140,000 partially trained reserves of the new Philippine army, of whom several thousand already are in uniform undergoing training, and also 7,000 or more members of the Philippine constabulary.

A force of 10,000 or more Philippine scouts already was an integral part of the United States army, but restricted by law to service in the islands.

Informed officials reported the order had been ready for weeks. An agreement to put it into effect when deemed needed was worked out by High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre, Commonwealth President Manuel Quezon, and other officials.

Aside from the commonwealth forces and the Philippine Scouts, there are several thousand white American troops, air and naval forces ready for defense of the islands.

Strike of Rockford's Street Workers Fails to Materialize Friday

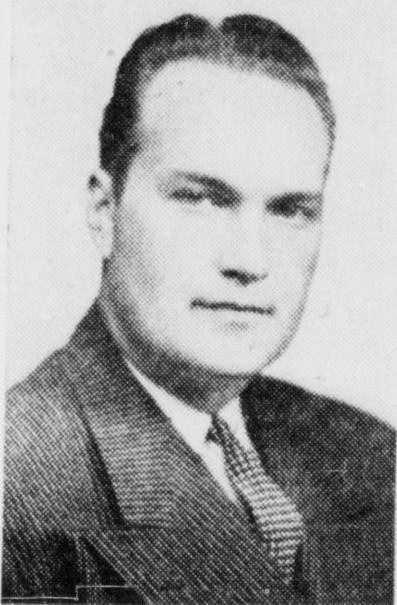

Rockford, Ill., July 26—(AP)—A threatened strike by city street and water department employees failed to materialize yesterday after they had been assured job security.

After officials of local 104-1 of the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees advised the employees that City Engineer William Day had promised there would be no additional layoffs, the workers voted 25 to 10 not to leave their jobs.

A strike of about 80 city workers had been tentatively set for late yesterday in protest over the recent dismissal of a master mechanic. He was not rehired under the new job security agreement.

Last month city sewer and water department employees went on strike after the discharge of five workers but they returned in two days when three of the men were reemployed.

For Legislature

Lyle M. Prescott, widely known to his many friends as "Bud," is being talked of in a serious way as a candidate for representative in the Illinois General Assembly from this, the 35th senatorial district.

Mr. Prescott, who is 34 years old, was born in Dixon and has lived here all of his life. He received his education in the Dixon public schools and is also a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Since his graduation from college in 1929 he has been engaged in the operation of the Prescott Oil Company, which has been a very successful business enterprise.

Mr. Prescott was an original president of the Young Republican Club of Lee County and while he has never been candidate for public office he has always been very active in support of the Republican party and its candidates, and has always been interested in civic affairs. Mr. Prescott is married and has one child.

Mount Morris Boy Held for Alleged Theft of Jewelry

Sterling, July 26—C. Eugene Baker, 18-year-old Mt. Morris youth, is being held in the Whiteside county jail at Morrison on the charge of larceny of a man's gold watch valued at $35, which he is said to have admitted taking from the Gerdes jewelry store, and a ruby ring valued at about $12 taken from Oppold's jewelry store, both in Sterling. The hearing was before Justice H. J. Folkers and he was bound over to the action of the grand jury and his bonds were placed at $2,000. Unable to furnish them he was taken to the county jail. The youth also admitted taking a $55 wrist watch from a Rockford firm about two months ago.

Was Football Star
The youth, weighing a mere 307 pounds, was a football star at Mt. Morris high school during the past three years. He graduated last June. His parents had promised him a watch for a graduation present and the youth got the idea of taking the jewelry after looking over several stocks of watches and rings.

He was in this city with his father a few weeks ago and visited local business houses but did not take anything at that time.

Thursday afternoon he drove here with another young boy from Mt. Morris and unknown to his companion he took the jewelry. He took the watch from Gerdes' store first and then got the ring next from Oppold's. He was in Gehring's store when the police apprehended him.

Bloomington Reduces Police, Fire Personnel

Bloomington, Ill., July 26—(AP)—Bloomington's police and fire departments were operated by smaller forces today but the members were assured of an increase in wages.

The city council last night approved the $175 monthly basic rate required by law, but ordered the police department personnel reduced from 34 to 29 and the fire department force from 39 to 26. A police matron will be dismissed on Jan. 1.

New Jersey's Democratic Leaders at Parting of Ways Over Rail Tax Bill

Jersey City, N. J., July 26—(AP)—Mayor Frank Hague has handed the leadership of the Democratic party in New Jersey to Governor Charles Edison so that "the people may be able to judge impartially" their feud over a railroad tax settlement.

"There must be no question of Edison versus Hague," he said in a statement announcing his bold action last night.

Edison promptly rejected the idea because, he said, "the mayor is presuming to give me something which is not within his power to give. That leadership is only within the gift of the Democratic voters and workers of the state."

Hague made clear that he was not abandoning political activity in his home stronghold of Hudson county, nor did he intend to relinquish the vice chairmanship of the national Democratic committee. He has been acknowledged leader of the party in New Jersey for 25 years but does not hold an office in the state organization.

Uncle Sam Assumes Offensive in New Economic Warfare

All Japanese Assets in United States Frozen by Order of F. D. R.

Washington, July 26—(AP)—The United States assumed the offensive in economic war against the axis in the Pacific today by "freezing" all Japanese assets and providing machinery for tightening down drastically on exports which would be vitally needed by Japan for any aggressive move on Singapore or the Dutch East Indies.

President Roosevelt's executive order immobilizing more than $131,000,000 in Japanese funds and property, including that of some of an estimated 70,000 Japanese residents in American territory, was issued in full knowledge that Japan might take immediate retaliatory action.

Only a few hours after Roosevelt issued his order, Great Britain swung into a parallel course, freezing Japanese assets in the far-flung British empire.

The president's action was a quick counterstroke to Japan's move to assume military control in French Indo-China. Acting Secretary of State Welles had denounced Tokyo's step as a menace to peace in the Pacific and declared it endangered American territory (the Philippines) and adjacent areas on which the United States depends for many raw materials vital for national defense.

A retaliatory freezing order by Japan immobilizes estimated $217,000,000 in American assets in the Japanese empire, an amount which would be materially increased if the Japanese-dominated governments of Manchukuo and Japanese-occupied China took similar action.

10,000 Americans Affected
An estimated 4,400 Americans, mostly Japanese born in the United States (including Hawaii), live in the Japanese empire, and a large number of the estimated 6,000 Americans still in China are in areas occupied by Japanese forces or under the jurisdiction of the "puppet" government set up by the Japanese army at Nanking.

The president's freezing order also included all Chinese assets in American territory but a White House statement explained such action had been taken at the request of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, to keep Japan from benefitting from any Chinese-owned assets under American jurisdiction.

$76,164,989 Paid to Unemployed of State in 1940-41

Chicago, July 26—(AP)—Unemployment compensation benefits totalling $76,164,989 were paid to jobless Illinois workers during the two years ended June 30, 1941, the state department of labor reported today.

Martin P. Durkin, state director of labor, said that $45,551,238 was paid in Cook county.

Amounts paid were based on the worker's past earnings in insured employment. Only those who have earned at least $225 at insured work during 1940 can qualify for benefits at the present time.

Durkin reported that most of the money goes into the channels of trade and commerce in the recipient's home community almost immediately after it is paid.

"The greater part of every benefit check is spent for food, rent, clothing and similar necessities," he said.

On general workers in commercial and industrial concerns employing six or more persons are insured. The law does not cover farm workers, domestics in private homes, and workers in certain other groups.

county, nor did he intend to relinquish the vice chairmanship of the national Democratic committee. He has been acknowledged leader of the party in New Jersey for 25 years but does not hold an office in the state organization.

Hague said his action would compel Edison to face the people "and justify his complete repudiation of the party platform upon which he was elected, and his sell-out of the people of New Jersey to the railroads."

The Hague-Edison controversy started when Edison signed into law four bills passed this week by the Republican-dominated legislature. The bills provided for payment by the railroads of $34,000,000 in delinquent taxes and waiving by the state of $18,000,000 in interest and penalties.

Illinois Counties May Issue Bonds to Liquidate Judgments

New Statute Will Become Effective Without Green Signature

Springfield, Ill., July 26—(AP)—Legislation authorizing any downstate Illinois county to issue general revenue bonds to pay off outstanding indebtedness was scheduled to become law tonight without the signature of Governor Green.

The bill empowers county boards of supervisors to issue the bonds without referendum approval of voters to pay obligations on which court judgments have been obtained by creditors.

The only limitations placed upon the bonding power are that the revenue shall be used only to pay judgment debts, and that the bonds shall bear not more than four and one-half per cent interest. A special county tax to retire the bonds also is authorized by the bill.

Officials here said many counties were planning to utilize the bonding authority to pay judgments resulting from the expense of medical and hospital care for poor persons.

No Action on 11 Bills

Until the law was changed in the recent legislative session, counties were responsible for payment of such medical care in excess of relief or old age assistance grants, and for hospitalization of poor persons not on public aid rolls. A new law makes townships liable for such expense hereafter.

The bond bill was one of 11 house bills on which Governor Green took no action before leaving Springfield this week for a vacation. All will automatically become law at midnight tonight, barring unexpected veto action by Lieut. Governor Hugh W. Cross as acting governor.

Reps. S. O. Dale (R-Fairfield) and Homer Kasserman (D-Newton) jointly sponsored the county bond bill.

Seven senate bills, among them the state oil conservation measure, are similarly due to become law without signature at midnight Monday, July 27, upon expiration of the ten-day period allowed for their consideration by the governor.

Clinton, Ill., July 26—(AP)—Homer Gray, 60, an inspector for the Illinois Central railroad, died today in a hospital of burns received in an explosion which destroyed his home yesterday.

Seriously burned in the blast was John Trout, 59, of Newton, Kas., a salesman. Gray's wife, Emma, was slightly burned.

DeWitt county Coroner J. K. Herington said the explosion apparently was caused by ignition of escaped gas while the two men were installing a condensed gas system in the Gray home.

The seven-room bungalow was lifted from its foundation by the force of the blast, and brick basement walls were shattered.

Chicago, July 26—(AP)—Postmaster Ernest J. Krueger warned today that the new chain letter scheme in which a defense saving stamp was substituted for the usual dime was in violation of the postal fraud and lottery statutes.

Speedy Passage of Record Tax Bill by Congress Expected

Republican Criticism of New Deal Spending Is Pattern of Debate

Washington, July 26—(AP)—Sharp Republican criticism of the administration's non-defense spending policies today signalled the probable tenor of the opposition when the $3,529,200,000 tax bill reaches the house floor early next week.

Republican members of the house ways and means committee expressed their criticism in a minority report on the measure, distributed by the Republican national committee, but acknowledged they had "no alternative but to support the general objective of the bill."

Asserting it was obvious that a substantial increase in the tax burden was imperative to finance the defense program and protect the credit of the nation, the committee said the taxpayers must be "painfully aware" that the ability of the government to finance the defense program had been "greatly impaired by the prodigality of the new deal spenders."

"These wastrels have engaged in the greatest peace-time orgy of extravagance in all history," the report said, adding that in eight years the administration had spent as much as it took to run the government during the first 131 years of the country's history.

Making public their views in advance of the majority's report scheduled for today, the Republicans contended that the administration had spent $67,518,000 since it came in to power and that only $5,000,000,000 of that represented

Economic War Is On Between U.S. and Nipponese

The War Today!

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Telegraph Special Service)

The question of immediate moment revolving about Japan's occupation of French Indo-China is whether the Nipponese intend also to take over the riches of the Dutch East Indies, thereby securing vital resources which would greatly lessen her present dependence upon the United States and Great Britain.

Thailand (Siam) which lies up against French Indo-China at the top of the Malay peninsula, should provide us with a good barometer to measure the Japanese plans. If they should make a move to occupy Thailand also, then it will be clear that they are consolidating positions for a drive in the Indies—an operation which would involve the knocking out of Britain's great naval base of Singapore.

The Japanese press claims that Tokyo was forced to occupy French Indo-China because British, Free-French and American interests were planning to move on that country. And the Japanese foreign office has issued a statement calculated to inspire the belief that Nippon's sole purpose is to safeguard the colony's territorial integrity and protect both French and Japanese interests.

However, the Japanese press also has been making the significant claim that the allies have designs on Thailand too and that this country may need Japan's protection. Whether this newspaper talk is a build-up for further remains to be seen. In any event, keep an eye on Thailand.

The quick action of the United States and Britain in placing heavy economic restrictions on Japan, and Tokyo's fear of a wholesale economic blockade, may have the effect of restraining the Nipponese from further moves toward the Indies at this juncture. It is no secret that Japan throughout her operations against China has lived in constant dread of the application of a trade embargo, which London experts now claim could bring Japanese industry to its knees in six months.

Japan's economic position already is very bad, owing largely to the drain of the war in China. Until she can open up new sources of supply she not only is dependent on America and the British empire for vital necessities, especially those needed for the conduct of war, but the United States is her best customer as well. A trade blockade therefore certain-

New Department of Air Corps Open to Youths

A new department in the U. S. Army Air Corps has been opened to high school graduates, Sergeant Emory Jones of the local recruiting station announced today. The first full class of enlisted flying students in the history of the Army air forces will begin flight training next month under the supervision of the Gulf Coast air corps training center.

Two hundred students, all of whom will be detailed from the ranks of the army and many of whom are expected to be enlisted men of the Army air forces, will start learning to fly Aug. 23.

The name of the school to which they will be assigned has not been announced. Another 200 tentatively are scheduled to begin training October 4 and a third class of 200 men will get under way about Dec. 8. For the time being, the enlisted students will get their elementary training at the same schools now training aviation cadets. Complete information may be obtained upon application at the recruiting station at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Lincoln Once Accused of "Running Off" Woman Accused of Matricide

One of the Lincoln anecdotes recalled involves Mrs. Melissa Goings, who was charged with murdering her husband in 1857. Lincoln was one of her attorneys when she pleaded innocent in the Metamora courthouse, now a historical shrine. She talked with Lincoln for a time and then walked out of the building, never to return.

Local historians say that Robert T. Cassell, who was court bailiff at the time, accused Lincoln of "running her off," and that the lawyer replied:

"She wanted to know where she could get a good drink of water and I told her there was some mighty good water in Tennessee."

Canada, Britain Also Join Battle of Economics

(By The Associated Press)
Striking back swiftly in the new economic war, Japan ordered freezing of United States assets throughout her empire and prepared a similarly retaliatory against the British.

Indications were that Japan would not stop with this but would in addition take over Shanghai's famous International Settlement completely, where British, French and United States have extra-territorial rights.

The Japanese announced their economic moves about the time that the command of their forces of occupation moved into southern French Indo-China under an agreement negotiated with the axis-dominated Vichy government of France. Full complements of naval, land and air forces were expected to follow, starting Sunday.

It was this agreement for "joint defense" of Indo-China which touched off the economic struggle.

The United States, arsenal for the fight against the axis around the world, was reliably reported to have added Russia to the list of beneficiaries of American production.

Red Mission Enroute?

A Russian mission was reported enroute to Washington following a conference at London among the Russian ambassador there, Ivan Maisky, Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's special representative, and United States Ambassador John G. Winant in which Maisky outlined Russia's needs in the battle with Germany.

American circles at Shanghai said Japan probably would occupy the International Settlement and the French Concession, the principal parts of the city which, out of deference to extraordinary right of accidental powers, had been left unoccupied when the Japanese invasion of China enveloped Shanghai.

The French Concession and the International Settlement were likely to be yielded without resistance.

The first is under the administration of the Vichy government whose capitulation to the Japanese plan of "joint defense" of French Indo-China was followed by the economic counter-steps of the British and Americans against Japan.

The International Settlement is virtually undefended and indefensible against the thousands of Japanese already in Japanese-controlled parts of the city. The settlement is garrisoned by the Fourth regiment of United States Marines and has a corps of lightly armed volunteers whose functions have been of a police nature.

Japan was held likely to take over the third power areas through the Tokyo-sponsored Nanking government for China which has long threatened to abolish foreign holdings.

Many Trumps Remain

The British and Americans indicated they still had many a trump to play in the economic game. The controversy promised to become a series of retaliations and counter-retaliations.

The British followed up their freezing of Japanese funds by suspending all commercial treaties with Japan, according to a reliable London informant. The United States on Jan. 21, 1940, let lapse her own 25-year-old treaty of commerce and navigation with Japan. Trade since then had been on a day-to-day basis.

The supreme weapon of the economic arsenal of Britain and the United States remained unused—total blockade. Economic experts in London said that this could bring Japanese industry to its knees in six months.

The British press called the British-American moves proof that the policy of appeasement was dead.

The Japanese march into southern Indo-China—she has held control in the north for many months—was expected to reach its full swing with the approval of naval, air and land forces at the start of the next week.

Three bombers bearing Major General Raishiro Sumita, head of the Japanese mission to the French colony, and aides swooped down on Saigon's modern airport today about the time that a train of military trucks reached the southern city.

The Japanese occupation of Indo-China, now in prospect, has been represented by Britons and Americans as a potential threat to Singapore, the great British fortress of the Far East; the

by PAUL T. HAAGEN, A.I.A.

Is Modernization Worth While?

Granting that it is possible to keep almost any house in good salable condition, does the value we have maintained compare with the money we have spent to do the job? In short, is making an old house look new a profitable investment?

There is the case of a Louisville man who purchased an old house in a good neighborhood for $4,400. He spent an additional $4,879 in improving and bringing the house up to date, making his total investment $9,279. Independent appraisers valued the improved house and lot at $13,000, which represents a profit of just $3,721.

A Park Ridge, Illinois, man, to cite another instance, purchased a run-down house which could not be rented, for $5,500. Improvements cost $6,000; but he sold the renovated property for a cool $14,000... a net profit of $2,500.

The sums required to improve these two properties was high in proportion to the needs of the average thirty-year-old house, but they illustrate how modernization not only maintains value, but often turns a liability into a profit maker.

Almost one-half of the highway-railroad crossing accidents in 1940 occurred in the four month period, October to January.

GLASS And Its Modern Use

By PAUL T. HAAGEN
Within the last few years glass has become an important factor in the planning and designing of the smaller house. Today there are more windows and larger ones in the home. The reason why so much more glass is being used in the smaller home is first that the homes of today require large open spaces to give the effect of spaciousness and draw something of the out-of-doors into the house.

If there is a view, the home owner wishes to take advantage of it, and so larger windows are used and oftimes we see a large sheet of plate glass placed in an important position in an outside wall where there is a desirable view. This is known as a picture window.

With the development of the new heating plants that have come into popularity in the last ten years, and because of better insulation, the use of glass is possible to a greater extent than formerly.

Glass partitions are used as dividers between rooms where a solid wall would be inadvisable and make possible the arrangement of the rooms in a much more spacious fashion. Two thicknesses for insulation purposes are also being used.

Glass blocks—a relatively new development—are utilized in many ways. They are particularly advantageous where they are built into a wall when light is needed but where the view is not a desirable one. Light is diffused through these glass blocks but one cannot see through them. They also act as insulation.

Probably the most popular type of house built in the United States today is the Cape Cod or the Early American farm house, colonial type. Styles will vary, of course, as to the location and climate.

After the Cape Cod or Early American farm house type comes the house with an English or French Provincial trend. Somehow the English and French Provincial styles fit well into our American lives and a great many families have found in these styles the type that best suits them.

Houses in these four styles seem to strike a note of hominess in most American hearts. More houses are built of these four types than any other style.

In California and Arizona the Monterey colonial ranch house is popular. In Florida and also in California there is the influence of the Spanish type, but in the central and northern states these houses do not seem to fit.

The trend is to a simplified house. This leads to the modern design where large rooms with very simple themes and the elimination of all unnecessary gadgets seem to fit in well with the newer accessories, fittings and furnishings. This type of house is a particular favorite with the younger generation.

HINGES MAY BE INVISIBLE
If you have a door in a plain wall which you would like to conceal or make as inconspicuous as possible in the wallspace or panel, there now come hinges that do not show when the door is closed. These hinges fit doors of all sizes—those in the house, in cupboards, in furniture, etc. The hinge simply sinks snugly to the side of the door and the door jamb.

ARRANGED FOR LIVING

The plan of this small house is well arranged for living. It has two good bedrooms. And the breakfast room now opening off the kitchen might have a door cut through with the living room thus providing a study, den or extra bedroom. There is no basement and the heating plant would either have to be placed in the kitchen or one of the new type heating plants which are located in the attic might be used.

CLOSETS

No closet is more convenient than one in the bathroom to hold linens and extra supplies.

A closet that is only eleven inches deep takes up little space in the bathroom and yet it is adequate for the purpose. It also provides an excellent place for hanging the towels in daily use. Hoies or ventilation should be provided in the door to give a circulation of air.

In the kitchen a great help is a small cupboard with screened doors in which food too hot to be immediately placed in the refrigerator may be placed to cool. Such a closet may be built over the refrigerator or at any other convenient place.

INSTALL METAL CHUTE

A metal coal chute is better than the old-fashioned window. It is break-proof, weather-proof, thief-proof and attractive.

HOME APPLIANCES

The modern home is so completely equipped with appliances that tend to relieve the drudgery of housework that it is almost unnecessary to call to the attention of those who intend to build or modernize that all of the conveniences that it is possible to incorporate should be installed while building.

Just one of those conveniences is a garbage receiver which may be sunk in the ground directly outside the kitchen door, the top of which is raised by pressing a lever with the foot. Such a garbage receiver is not unsightly. Furthermore, it is much more sanitary because the garbage container being below the ground is out of the way of dogs and cats that may prowl around.

The automobile industries of the U. S. have become the largest consumers of cotton.

CONVERT ATTIC

If you are planning to convert your attic space into livable quarters it will be absolutely necessary to thoroughly insulate the roof and side walls and to provide plenty of cross ventilation.

If the attic stairs are steep, as most attic stairs are, it will be a wise precaution against accidents to install a strong hand rail.

STUDY ROOM

It is a practical idea, when planning your house to provide a small secluded room which may be used as a den or study. This need not be large but it is a splendid space for the children to use as a room for study or for father to use when he brings home work from the office.

APPLIANCE CIRCUITS

Appliance circuits are being placed today in small houses which permit the mangle, washing machine and other electrical equipment to be placed on these appliance circuits. This is an advantage of the lights in the house and also there is less danger of blowing a fuse on the regular lighting circuit due to the heavier loads required on these appliances when the current is switched on.

LACQUER WALL PAPERS

A coat of good white lacquer on wall paper, even though it is washable, will protect seams and render the wall waterproof. This treatment is especially recommended for bathrooms and kitchens where necessary.

Open House Held For Remodeled Kreim Store

Many friends attended the open house held last night at the Frank H. Kreim Furniture Store, 86 Galena Avenue, in celebration of the recent remodeling and expansion of that firm.

HOME LUMBER is proud to add this project to the list of many business firms that have relied on its quality building materials in their expansions and remodeling.

The expansion and redecorating recently completed included the addition of about 35,000 square feet of floor space, acquired by occupying the adjoining building which formerly was the location of Staple's Funeral Home. The old store contained three floors of furniture and rug displays, and now with this addition, there is five spacious floors of merchandise.

A new and modern front that covers the combined lengths of both buildings has been added and attractive display windows offer the passerby an excellent view of the store's interior.

Extensive remodeling was done inside the store. New lighting fixtures have been installed to give every portion of the store the proper light. Model rooms have been constructed and are displayed so that the customer will have an idea of what their room will look like before they purchase their furniture.

A Thought For Today

The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.—Mark 2:27.

I always like to begin a journey on Sunday because I shall have the prayers of the church.—Swift.

Once Again, the Warning

People have almost stopped talking about whether we shall have inflation or not. Now the usual topic is, "How much inflation?"

There are still many people not adverse to it. Farmers want much higher prices (inflationary). Organized labor, in fact all labor, want higher wages (inflationary). People with things to sell generally want higher prices (inflationary). Government financing is still largely by lending to banks which create the deposit money resulting (inflationary). Stock market speculators want high prices (inflationary).

There has been considerable gradual inflation ever since 1930, stepping up at a faster pace recently. Up to now, most people like it. But economist Irving Fisher is only one of many to warn that while it has been fine up to now, the time has come to begin applying the brakes. One way in which every man can have his hand on the brake is to buy defense bonds, thus keeping his spare money out of the scramble for increasingly scarce goods, which puts prices up.

Puppet Show in a Vacuum

The world has been treated to many sorry spectacles of late, but none more depressing than the puppet show in a vacuum now being staged in France by the aged but no longer venerable Marshal Pétain.

Though the French people are completely under the heel of the German conqueror, the ancient, 84-year-old marshal solemnly goes about the business of having a "constitution" written for France.

A "constitution"? By whose right and authority, one wonders? Have the French people ever repudiated their existing constitution? A few, yes, like Charles Maurras, who as a Monarchist leader has been fighting the republic for many years. A few like Laval and Darlan, and the others who leaped so avidly at the German-granted opportunity to reorganize France according to their own design, while the German occupation troops kept the people from speaking.

But the French people themselves? The farmer on the soil, the village shopkeeper, the worker in a Bordeaux factory? No one has heard them speak, for their mouths are stopped.

It is a year now since Pétain received from the National Assembly the grotesque shreds of power that the Germans suffered to remain to France. No one can interpret the mind of the French people at that ghastly moment, for it had no mind. The awfulness of the military disaster had robbed it of all power to think. Possibly many turned to the old soldier, Pétain, in hope that he could save more fragments from the disaster than anyone else. But that the French people ever, directly or indirectly, vested Pétain with power to write a new and permanent constitution for France can scarcely be suggested with a straight face.

It is difficult to blame Pétain for what he has done or not done during the past year of his "power." After all, he has done what the nazis directed and permitted him to do. But for the ancient marshal to attempt to clamp on the French people for all time some kind of totalitarian nightmare, which it is now clear he had been dreaming long before his country fell, is an arrogant assumption of power which will never stand, once the French people find their voice again.

This is not to assume that the Third Republic must rise again. It is dead. But whatever new government of a free France shall come into being, it will be of the people and by the people, and not a prescription for the people written by a clique of old dotards beneath nazi bayonets.

Now It's Trotsky

At the outset of the now-existing fracas between Comrades Hitler and Stalin there were many Americans who rejoiced. Now, they said, the Reds will stop throwing monkey wrenches in our industrial gears. All these Reds want Stalin to win; England and the United States, by manufacturing arms, will help Stalin to win; therefore, the Reds will work hard at producing arms, and will stop strikes and sabotage.

About that time this column took a timid shot in the dark and expressed the opinion that the Reds would continue to be Red, being constitutionally unable to be anything else. Further, we suggested, there is the Trotsky brand of Redness for the benefit of those who don't want to be Stalin Reds.

This opinion was vindicated yesterday by the announcement that the United States had arrested members of a ring of Trotsky Reds who were not only organized to attempt a revolution, but actually armed. Two of these gents of florid political hue actually had gone to Mexico, in the days before Leon's demise, and had consulted with him about the best revolutionary tactics.

Now Trotsky was exiled from Russia because he couldn't get along with Stalin; rather, we should say, because he wanted to get along without Stalin, and for the further reason that Josef got the draw on Leon.

Wherever Leon went thereafter he was exiled for trying to overthrow the government which sheltered him. Mexico was a natural for him; it already was Red. It didn't need overthrowing.

Joe's memory was long, however, and eventually a Stalinist Red gained access to Trotsky in Mexico, rapping him on the head with an alpenstock. It was a great shock to the Reds in the United States, and no doubt they have sworn to get even with Stalin.

They can get even with him by hampering the flow of American munitions.

Some folks who can't deliver the goods still expect to collect.

Airplane Industry Outstrips Movies in Income Import

California District in Grip of Industrial Revolution

By DEVON FRANCIS

Los Angeles. — (The Special News Service)—In the great San Fernando valley, north of Los Angeles, and in the city itself, neat little houses are popping up from the soil by the hundreds—a by-product of the rearmament program.

The houses are placarded: "$169 down, balance in easy payments." They sell easily. Los Angeles needs hundreds and thousands more.

The Los Angeles used car marts need more used cars.

The Los Angeles home radio and electric refrigerator business, established as elsewhere on the installment plan, was never so brisk.

This city, home of the movie industry, of the sub-divided subdivision, and of tourist attractions ranging from a lion farm to a pitch lake which gives up the bones of prehistoric monsters, is in the grip of a sort of industrial revolution.

Its cause: The demand for warplanes by the scores of thousands. In dollar volume, the Los Angeles and San Diego areas manufacture almost half the airplanes made in the United States.

On Jan. 1, 1939, some 14,000 persons were on the pay rolls of the Southern California Aircraft industry.

Today those pay rolls contain more than 100,000 names, and they're still growing.

Gather From Everywhere Uncounted thousands, seeking jobs, have trekked from the east, the middle west and the Rocky Mountain states to Los Angeles and San Diego.

In economic importance to the region, airplane making has far outstripped the movie industry. The aircraft factories' weekly pay roll is approaching the $4,000,000 mark.

They have orders on hand worth almost $2,000,000,000, and more orders are in the offing.

Manufacture in Southern California for air defense has brought about changes in production methods which are boosting the output of the individual workman.

It has intensified research work, looking toward the time when the manufacturers insist, the national emergency will have opened the door in more normal times to the carrying of freight by air.

They are preparing now for post-emergency fabrication of planes to supply air transportation to passengers at a fraction of the current cost.

The planes are rolling out of the factory doors at a pace not even the most sanguine dared hope for when the first deluge of orders was received last October.

In the first six months of this year most of the plants had completed construction projects which had been scheduled for completion by next January. On Jan. 1, 1939, they had 2,500,000 square feet of space to work in. On June 1 of this year they had 10,660,000 square feet.

Some 5,500,000 more are under construction.

In the yard of the Consolidated Aircraft Corp., in San Diego, 20-ton, winged machines of war, glowering in their dark camouflage, squat cat-like while swarms of workmen ready them for initial flights.

Equipment for Armies Those warplanes are today's equipment for the armed forces of the United States and England. Their lineal descendants will be tomorrow's freight and passenger transports.

The manufacturers of big aircraft, who in the last few months have been faced with expansion programs on an almost fantastic scale, already are planning for post-emergency business.

They have their problems. It is hard to get steady supplies of some unfabricated materials. It is hard to train workmen fast enough. It is hard, in a manner of speaking, to get bolts and nuts.

But in whipping those problems the manufacturers believe they are laying the groundwork for a post-emergency return to normal and the arrival of a commercial "Air Age."

The European war, they say, is serving to speed the coming of the air age.

Some to Latin America

A trickle of United States aircraft is finding its way to Latin America, but the bulk of the output of our factories is going to the armed services of the United States and of Great Britain.

The manufacturers have clung to their commercial research programs in spite of the demands of rearmament. They are hiring new workmen by the tens of thousands, and when the emergency is over they want to keep a large proportion of their workers on the pay roll by expanding the non-military aircraft market.

They believe it can be done. Apart from the necessity of throwing up great new factory structures and hiring men by the wholesale to fill them, the concentration on aircraft has created shortages elsewhere.

A shortage of aluminum alloys, mentioned recently by Senator Mead of New York, continues, but is to be relieved by new government-built plants.

Some of the big aircraft manufacturers laid up big stores of aluminum months ago.

Aircraft factories must have rubber de-icers, pumps, small castings, nuts and bolts to make airplanes. Shortage in any category can stop production.

A famine in parts almost occurred. Then the aircraft makers acted. Into the main parts-manufacturing areas—New England, Detroit, Akron, Dayton, Brooklyn, South Bend, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Cleveland—emissaries went to help the small manufacturers boost their output.

Today small parts are flowing in a steady stream into southern California. "Shadow-factories," with thousands of sub-contractors, have been established right in this area. Los Angeles alone has 171 of them. They could keep output up even if, by a stretch of the imagination, one, or six, or a dozen plants were bombed.

Newfoundland Shot on Recreation so U. S. Army Gets Busy

St. John's, Newfoundland. — (The Special News Service)—The United States Army is whacking a baseball diamond out of the rock-strewn soil of Newfoundland.

It's a tough job. But baseball follows the flag, and American troops at this outpost are determined to have their hits-and-runs.

The Americans had to make their own diamond, because the Newfoundlanders are not a nation of ball players.

The baseball field is one answer to Newfoundland's most serious bottleneck—a shortage of recreation facilities. American officers are working hard to remedy this situation because of recreation's importance to morale.

Newfoundlanders are doing what they can, and doing it cheerfully. A bright example is the Caribou Hut, run by the St. John's War Service Association, with other organizations co-operating.

Originally built by the late Sir Wilfrid Grenfell as a seamen's institute, the "Hut" is a sizeable building containing not only game rooms, social rooms and dormitory, but St. John's only indoor swimming pool. But if all its facilities were multiplied by three it still would be overcrowded.

Theaters Swamped

There are five motion picture theaters in St. John's, sufficient for the peacetime needs of the town. Now, naturally, they are swamped.

For United States soldiers, the curse has been taken off this particular problem by the big motion picture tent recently erected at Camp Alexander. The projection equipment is the most modern in the St. John's area, and the camp theater gets five new films every week.

Camp Chaplain F. E. Hand of Atlantic City, N. J., supervises the movie programs. In addition to his duties as chaplain, he also runs the camp library, publishes a monthly magazine, and is trying to organize a playground for children of United States families living in the St. John's area.

There is a swimming-hole near the American camp, useful on hot days, if any. It's a natural plunge, in a small rocky gorge, constantly fed with fresh water from the stream.

"TO MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY"

(From "Investor America") I picture a scene enacted thousands of times some twenty years ago. A father and mother stand alone for a few minutes with their son, who is just about to embark for "somewhere in France."

The heart of the mother is almost crushed at the thought of parting, perhaps forever, with her boy. The father's heart, too, is wrung with grief, but buoyed by pride in the manly and courageous spirit of his son. The soldier boy grasps firmly the hand of his father, turns and kisses his mother good-bye, and says: "Remember, we go into this war to end war—to make the world safe for democracy."

I shall not discuss the comparative gains and losses of the last World War. Some claim to believe that there were real gains to compensate for the terrible suffering, for the millions of lives lost or wrecked, and for the billions of dollars expended. But none can claim today that the idealistic statement of President Wilson, which inspired our American boys to offer up their lives, was realized. Certainly the world was not made safe for democracy, and as a result a great disillusionment has followed. This may account for the comparative lack of enthusiasm on the part of our soldier boys today as they prepare for possible participation in this present conflict.

The objectives of this World War have not been concisely stated, but the struggle is clearly to save democracy where it exists in the world today, and from our standpoint, to defend and preserve our own American system of free representative government.

Our boys are not yet being sent to the front. Millions of fathers and mothers, wives and sweethearts, are clinging anxiously to the solemn promises of President Roosevelt that these boys will never be sent to fight and die on foreign fields. All realize that the dread decision is in the hands of the president, since our chosen representatives in congress "voluntarily" delegated to him their constitutional responsibility. This they claim was done to make democracy more safe here in America.

We are lavishly spending billions upon billions of dollars to aid those who are fighting to maintain the right of self-government abroad, and to strengthen the defenses of our own country at home. When our beloved land is in danger and our freedom threatened, no expenditures, however large, are too great a price to pay for the preservation of our liberties as individuals and as a nation. But it is the duty of every patriotic American to insist that while these fabulous sums are being spent for protection against dangers from without, our American system of free representative government, individual initiative, and free enterprise is not being subtly under-

Letter From Cousin in Britain Reflects Courage, Optimism

Dixon Ladies Get Note Telling of England in Time of War

Mrs. H. U. Bardwell of East Second street and Mrs. Eustace E. Shaw of Bluff Park recently received an interesting letter from her cousin, George Redhaigh, who wrote from Marlborough Hotel, Harrogate, England.

Excerpts from the letter, reflecting both courage and optimism, follows:

We left Grange in April and are staying at the above address in Harrogate, our house still being occupied by a tenant. I suppose we shall remain here until November, and then probably go back to Grange for winter. We get in Yorkshire during the winter. All this is assuming that we do not get "Blitzed" by Jerry.

The bombers pass right over the house at night, and our own aircraft are about all the time. We can hear them when in bed. However, we count ourselves fortunate, that up to time of writing, we have not had any bombs dropped on us and are all quite safe and well and cheery.

Bombs and incendiaries were dropped at one town we were staying in, but fortunately we had left there three weeks previously. You can have no conception of the damage caused on buildings by bombs and incendiaries—it is appalling. Whole streets are wrecked in some cases. However, we are standing up to it very well indeed, and looking forward to getting our own black on Jerry. There is no doubt about it; they will get a good deal more than they have given us and indeed are doing so now. The whole of the Empire stands firmly behind Mr. Churchill and all are prepared to stick it out.

We are doing very well (considering the times) in regard to food, and have every reason to be well satisfied in that respect. It is, of course, not always possible to get just what you would like and it is very trying for the home wife. Tomatoes are being sold at 1/6 per quarter pound. We have good supplies of potatoes and vegetables. Meat is not quite so plentiful, but still we are not doing badly. Bacon, jam, butter, and eggs are all rationed and supplies rather limited. Jam ration is one pound per month, each person.

On the whole, we manage very well. Chocolate and sweets are very difficult to obtain and there are long waiting lines, outside any shop that happens to have a supply and they are quickly sold out. Of course the housewife has to spend no end of time, waiting for her rations (meat, bacon, butter, etc.) and it is a rather trying operation. Still, it has to be done and after all, is fair to all. Tobacco and cigarettes are also in short supply, but I manage to get enough for my requirements and it would not be a serious matter, cutting it out, if necessary.

Weather Quite Chilly

We are now well into June, but still no signs of summer weather. It is quite chilly yet, x x x x x. We are all looking forward to warmer and more sunny weather. All our men are called on to register up to 41 years of age, the latter group registering in a few days time and most of the young men are already serving at home and overseas. Some are dropped into munition factories. Many of our young women are also in the munition works and thousands of them are in the service and looking fit and smart in their army uniform. Yes—Britain is at war, and you find evidence of it at every turn. As you walk along the streets, you may rub shoulders with men from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Poland, Free France, possibly South Africa.

We were all very much surprised by the speech of your President (Mr. Roosevelt)—a wonderful and beautiful speech, which carried conviction and was very much applauded here. We are looking forward to the time when both countries will reach the peak of production in regard to armaments, and we can then meet the Germans on level terms.

Young Man: "Hurrah! Five dollars for my latest story!"

Friend: "Congratulations, young man! From whom did you get the money?"

Young Man: "From the express company. They lost it!"

Let us remember that serious days of reckoning must follow these critical times. The mountainous debts we are piling up in support of national defense are sure to bear heavily upon our children and our children's children for generations to come. As they feel the weight of this crushing load, they will demand to know whether the enormous price which they must pay was truly for the preservation of our priceless heritage of free representative government.

SERIAL STORY

MURDER IN CONVOY

BY A. W. O'BRIEN

COPYRIGHT 1941. NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: In England, Greg is sent to Aldershot camp, where he begins his work for the next three days. He is given a premature leave of absence, decides to go to London. He is low in spirits when he arrives, since, before meeting Joan, he had agreed to meet her in London at the "Welcome Snail" inn. When he arrives in London, he takes a cab, doesn't know where to go. Finally he tells the driver to take him to the "Welcome Snail."

JOAN IS WAITING

CHAPTER XII

FOR fully 15 minutes the little taxi twisted and turned through the night, Lieutenant Rollins remarking to himself that the gray-haired driver must have cat's eyes. At irregular intervals, two-decker buses roared by and melted again into the darkness. There were few, if any, autos other than taxis. Astonishingly few, too, were evidences of air raid damage.

Finally, his cab drew up beside a curb.

A chubby little Frenchman in impeccable formal attire greeted him. "Bon soir, Monsieur. I am Pierre . . ." Then looking over Greg's shoulder, "You are alone, oui?"

The officer smiled. "Oui, I am alone."

"This way, Monsieur." Pierre turned toward the curiously narrow dining room, then stopped abruptly. "You are not, by any chance, Lieutenant Rollins, non?"

Greg halted in surprise. "Yes, I am Lieutenant Rollins, but how in the world . . . ?"

Pierre's face fairly beamed. He waved excitedly toward a table in the corner, and Greg's heart stood still. It was a dream. It must be . . . a cruel dream that . . . But, no, she was actually smiling at him and beckoning to the other chair. It was Joan Davern!

As if in a daze, Rollins approached. Automatically, he removed his cap, tucked his cane under his left arm and bowed. Still automatically, he sat in the chair as Pierre placed it under him.

"Good evening, Greg, aren't you glad to see me?"

Rollins finally found his tongue. Impulsively he reached out his hands and clasped her. "Of course I am, Joan. I'm so glad I could . . . no matter what . . ."

She laughed happily. "I knew you'd say that. You are a very lovable person, Greg. I phoned out to Aldershot this evening and found you had gone on leave. There was only one place I could hope to meet you, and even then I doubted—but you remembered."

London streets—still blanketed in fog—are much the same as they always were.

he still held her hands in his across the table. "Forget it, Joan. You must have escaped, and you are in danger. What can we . . . ?"

She laughed again, gently removing one hand. "Just a minute, Sir Galahad. I'm disobeying the strictest of orders in showing you this paper, but I'm a woman, too, and I'm afraid, rather in love." She opened a folded letter from her purse.

GREG's eyes widened as he read. It bore the letterhead of the British Intelligence and was signed by one of the most famous names in England!

The letter was addressed to "Agent R-72 Joan Connaught" and contained warm personal commendations for "your most commendable counter-espionage work in connection with Troopship Convoy MX."

Mixed joy and bewilderment stood out on Greg's face. "But, Joan, what . . . ?"

"I was planted in the German Embassy at Ottawa through devious channels 15 months before the outbreak of the war and, shortly before you sailed, I drew another assignment, to play the role of a nurse—with the name Davern—on 'T 9'."

"I kept watching the light flashes from the battle cruiser in order to keep in touch with what was going on. I knew the code and was on guard lest the cruiser see the nightly searlight business and warn our O. C."

Rollins interrupted. "Then the Nazi agent must have been . . ."

"That explains," murmured Rollins, "why he was so curious about you. He must have seen you approaching that night on deck, put two and two together when he saw you studying the cruiser signals and was on the watch for any secret discussions between us, just in case I was with you."

"Check. And the night I caught him red-handed, there was no choice but to shoot him when he tried to go for his gun. I had just taken the flashlight from his hand when you came up from the rear. I couldn't reveal my identity to you, but did so privately to the colonel after you left. Secret papers were found in Miley's gas mask."

"It was on my suggestion that the quarantine scheme was employed. We had to cover up in order to let one of our men take Miley's place on shore until the seat of the Nazi ring is found in England. His job had evidently been to flash regularly each night at the same time from a high deck to guide any prowling U-boat flotillas."

GREG squeezed her hands. "That's the grandest news I've ever heard. Now how about us?"

"Not so good, Greg. I'm leaving on the midnight train. They've found another job for me—in the Balkans this time." She searched GREG's troubled eyes.

"But they can't, Joan, dear," he said in a hoarse whisper. "I've only found you again. Not so soon . . ."

"It's no use, Greg," she injected tenderly. "This is war, and I must go."

Rollins had already shown he could act when action was necessary.

"Then what would normally take months must be done in two hours," he spoke in measured tones. "Will you marry me to-night—now?"

There was no hesitation on the girl's part. She nodded.

Rollins jumped to his feet and picked her up from her chair.

Pierre was tapping their shoulders, his face reflecting supreme embarrassment. "Monsieur, Made-moiselle . . . pliz, you are in the 'Welcome Snail' . . ."

Uncle Sam Assumes

sued a general license releasing assets under control of the Chinese government at Chungking (recognized by the United States) or the Bank of China, thereby making the order effective only against Japanese-controlled areas.

The order—which went into effect at the opening of business today—tied up Japanese assets in the continental United States, Hawaii, the Philippines and other American territory.

Treasury officials said that while Japanese ships in American ports or waters would be at least temporarily immobilized, a final decision would be made as to whether the vessels were "assets" under the order.

Four Ships in Ports
Maritime officials said four Japanese vessels were now in American waters and about 40 others flying the Rising Sun flag were hovering off the Pacific coast, hesitant to enter American ports until the question had been decided.

There was no immediate information available as to whether there were any American ships—which might be seized in retaliation—in Japanese ports or waters.

Under the order, it was explained, an American exporter must secure a treasury license before shipping oil or any other commodity to Japan, and an American importer must secure a license before he can import raw silk or any other product from Japan.

The question of whether oil—vital to the Japanese army, navy and industry—would continue to be shipped to Japan was not specifically mentioned in the supplementary treasury orders.

The White House statement did, however, emphasize that a major objective of the order was to prevent any trade between the United States and Japan "harmful to national defense and American interests."

Even before the announcement in London that Japanese assets and credits had been frozen all over the British empire, Canada's Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King declared "the necessary steps have been taken to prevent the withdrawal of assets in Canada belonging to residents of Japan."

MacKenzie King announced that Chinese funds had been frozen, too, at the request of Chiang Kai-Shek.

Normal trade is permitted between the Philippines and Japan provided it is not for the benefit of any other country whose assets have been frozen, notably Germany and Italy.

Postage on the 28-cent gift, which must go to Lisbon via Clipper, came to $15.

NEW FEUD—RIDDLES VS COOPERS
For the first time in baseball history, a "riddle" vs "double-Brother-Batter" battle is being topped a major league box score this summer, the Coopers of Independence, Mo., and the St. Louis Cardinals vs the Riddles of Columbus, Ga., and the Cincinnati Reds.

Morton Cooper, of the Reds, has his kid brother, Walker, as his receiver this summer, though injuries have kept them both out of action most of the season to date. In the Riddle family, the catcher is the elder, John the backstop is more than 10 years the senior of his sensational kid brother, Elmer, whose string of victories made him the most talked-of junior pitcher in the senior loop this year.

Berlin Under Attack
Apart from an overnight air attack by the RAF on Berlin no major development was reported in the European war. The Russian-German phase of it rounded out its fifth week, looking more and more as though the Germans had been checked.

The German high command said that rearguard resistance in the Ukraine had been broken and that pursuit of the Russians continued. Several similar claims have been made in the past.

The Russian communique was much like that of recent days and implied the Germans were being held virtually at a standstill. The Germans apparently had been unable to deepen their Smolensk salient toward Moscow on the central front.

"The enemy is suffering heavy losses," said the Moscow bulletin. Recover Territory
The Finns and the Rumanians fighting alongside the Germans announced simultaneously that they now had recovered soil ceded to Russia a year ago. For Rumania this included a large portion of Bucovina and all of northern Bessarabia; for Finland, it meant all the strip of territory northeast of Lake Ladoga.

The RAF attack on Berlin was the 46th of the war and the first in nearly two months.

The German high command acknowledged that "individual planes succeeded in penetrating to the reich's capital." The RAF also bombed points in western Germany but "civilian losses were slight," the Germans said, claiming that eight of the attacking bombers were downed.

The RAF had a different story to tell. It said that some of the heaviest and most powerful bombs were dropped in the heart of Berlin by four-engined bombers after the attackers illuminated their targets with flares. The RAF claimed other successes in night attacks on Hamburg and Hanover and acknowledged nine bombers missing.

When a great man dies, almost invariably among the biographies is a volume that consists mainly of his letters. These are read eagerly by those who loved or admired him because it is realized that in these letters he revealed his life and thoughts more clearly and intimately than anything else could have revealed it.

We have no formal biographies of the great apostles and leaders in the first generation of the Christian church. It is interesting that on the whole we know more about Paul than we do about any of the original 12 apostles. We are fortunate in the letters which tell us "more about Paul than the formal facts of his life and career as they are recorded in the Book of Acts, and which tell us much concerning Peter, James and others who wrote the Epistles.

Here in our lesson we have some samples of these letters. Three of the selections are from the letters of Paul—one to the Galatians, one to the Thessalonians, and one, a personal letter, addressed to his beloved son in the faith, Timothy. We have a selection, also from a letter written by Peter to the disciples in general, and a chapter which constitutes a single book, written by Jude, who is believed to have been a younger brother of Jesus.

In the passages by Paul, we have an indication of the intimate relationship he maintained with the churches he established, and with the disciples. Apparently there were two attitudes on the part of these—some whose loyalty to Paul was so intense that there was a danger of their religion making them disciples of Paul rather than disciples of Christ; and others who were inclined to be critical of Paul and to adhere more closely to other preachers or leaders who had come into the church.

For instance, Apollos had the reputation of being very fluent, whereas Paul seems to have been somewhat hesitant about his speech and of a character and personality more marked by ruggedness and strength than by smoothness and beauty.

Paul found it necessary to remind both these classes of disciples that their primary allegiance was to Jesus Christ, that their faith should not stand in him, or

'Tough-Luck' Tommy O'Boyle Hopeful of Place on All-Stars

Former Tulane Co-Captain Leads Guards in Poll for Big Contest

New Orleans, July 26—(AP)—Tough-luck Tommy O'Boyle, whose college grid career should have ended in a glory road but detoured into a trail of woe, is trying his damndest for one last chance to show the home folks that Tom Harmon is not the only Gary, Ind., boy who can play football.

It's no accident the 220-pound former Tulane co-captain is leading the guards in polling for the All-Star team to meet the Chicago Bears in the Windy City, Aug. 28.

"I want to start that game," grimly said the hefty boy who was Harmon's high school teammate at Gary.

"I haven't played up there since I've been in college and this will be my last chance. I'm not going to play professional football—my mother doesn't want me to, and I have a good spot at Tulane."

He is assistant line coach for the Green Wave.

O'Boyle and Fred Gloden, former Tulane fullback trying for a place on the squad, have spread All-Stars ballots bearing space for 125,000 signatures through New Orleans. Tommy's mother and brothers are campaigning in Gary. Gloden's brother, a printer in Dubuque, Iowa, is covering that territory with posters and ballots.

Injury Stopped Him

A year ago it was confidently expected hereabouts that Tommy would make All-America.

His coaches at Tulane, and tutors of both teams in the east-west game in which he played last December, ranked him among the greatest.

But he was hurt in scrimmage before the first 1940 game, and was injured again in the first game he got into. He left the hospital only a few days before Tulane met Fordham in New York and worked hard to get into condition, for his whole family was driving to see him play.

An accident en route took the lives of his father and aunt, and seriously injured his mother and brother. By the time Tommy got into the lineup again it was too late for an All-America bid.

To make the season complete he broke a small bone in his leg in the east-west game.

So now tough-luck Tommy wants one more chance—to show the home folks...

Ted Williams Back in Game; Takes Up Where He Left Off

New York, July 26—(AP)—Back on regular duty after nursing an injured ankle, Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox has taken up where he left off with his deadly bat and today is hitting .400 again.

This is an increase of five points since last week.

Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees has shaken off competition for second place with an average of .377 and apparently intends to battle Williams down the stretch for the American League batting championship which DiMaggio has held for the past two seasons.

Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers continued to clutch the National League lead, although the race in this loop seemed to be in reverse.

During the week Reiser dived from .348 to .333. Johnny Mize of St. Louis, his most persistent pursuer, slipped from .340 to .326 and turned over second place to John Cooney of the Boston Braves with .330.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, July 26—(The Special News Service)—

Corp. Ed Oliver has wired his golfing pals regrets he's unable to be on hand this week to defend the St. Paul Open title he won last year. Freddie (Red) Cochrane has bet $500 on himself against Fritzie Zivie Monday night at odds of 1-4.

Joe DiMaggio will be given a plaque when Jimmy Kelly, Greenwich Village night-spot owner and red-hot sports fan, entertains the village Knot-Hole Gang Monday afternoon.

The Labor Front

Fighter Kayo Morgan and his manager, Harry Baxter, are picking a Windsor (Ont.) promoter who dropped Morgan from his card this week. One of their placards reads, "Boxing Sensation—Promoter Runs Out On Fighter."

Sports Cocktail

Believe it or not, but National Football League coaches gave Red Freisell, who became famous by that extra down in last year's Cornell-Dartmouth game, 127 out of a possible 130 points in their report on officiating. Add oddities: All three games played in the Northern League the other day wound up in 2-2 ties. Harold Brown, head basketball coach and assistant football coach at Nebraska, has been promoted twice since joining the army. Al Weill, one of the smartest of the fight managers, has paid $3,000 for the contract of Jimmy Hatcher, promising 130-pounder from Lakeside, S. C., and Tony Canzoeri, who has been operating a skating rink near Fort Bragg, N. C., is going to have a try at promoting fights for the soldiers.

Today's Guest Star

Jimmy Dykes furnished the laugh of the day. A reporter queried Jim about the health of one of his convalescing athletes. "Turning to the suffering bench-warmer, Dykes asked, 'When do you think you'll be ready to get hurt again?'"

Omigosh

An unidentified correspondent wrote one of the Cleveland papers: "The Rams represent Cleveland in big league football and the hams in big league baseball."

Expect Semi-Pro Meet to End in Next 10 Days

Kewanee, Ill., July 26—(AP)—The original field of 16 teams was whittled to nine today as the state semi-pro baseball tournament concluded its second week. Officials predicted another 10 days would see the end of the meet.

The Fairfield Indians became the seventh ousted team last night when they committed eleven errors and lost to the Andover Swedes, 6 to 4. Johnson Motors of Waukegan handed Joliet Schlitz its first defeat in the other game, 7 to 5.

Peoria Gipsys, which has won three games, and the Kewanee Parkers and Palmer House Stars of Chicago, which have won two each, are the only undefeated teams in the tourney. Two defeats eliminate an entry.

Play resumes Monday.

New Director of U. of I. Athletics to be Named Soon

Champaign, Ill., July 26—(AP)—

The University of Illinois new acting athletic director will not necessarily be a member of the board of directors of the school's athletic association, members of the new board voted at a meeting yesterday.

The board, after announcing that it would make known its recommendation of any acting director on Aug. 5, voted to amend the by-laws removing a requirement that the director be a board member. The change in the by-laws makes it possible for the director to be on the board, but does not make it mandatory.

Waldo Ames of Chicago was elected president of the board, which replaces the one which resigned last week when the university's board of trustees retained Robert C. Zupke as football coach for another year and ousted Wendell S. Wilson, director of athletics. Wilson will officially be on leave of absence next year.

Ames said the announcement of the board's recommendation was being withheld until the next meeting of the board of trustees on Aug. 5. He described the new board as "harmonious," and said it was "looking forward, not backward. I believe we have an opportunity to serve the university at a most important time in its athletic history."

Prof. Robert R. Browne and Prof. Leslie E. Card, both on the university staff, were elected vice president and secretary, respectively, at yesterday's board meeting.

Former Star of N. Y. National Leaguers Makes Good in West

Expected to Take Over Active Direction of Team This Winter

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEA Service Sports Editor

New York, July 26—Horace C. Stoneham definitely has decided to make Frank Joseph O'Doul manager of the Giants.

Though William Harold Terry's five-year contract at $42,000 has another year to go, Lefty O'Doul probably will succeed him this winter.

That would give Bill Terry an opportunity to fulfill his long-cherished ambition for a front office job while finishing out his agreement.

It would give him time to devote to a limpy farm system.

Horace Stoneham picked O'Doul for a number of reasons.

The Man in the Green Suit closed his major league career with the New Yorks... helped bat them to the world championship in 1933. He is returning home.

As a two-time National League batting champion and holder of several hitting records, O'Doul is a famous baseball name.

Winning a Pacific Coast League pennant for San Francisco in his first year—1935, O'Doul quickly established a reputation as a skillful handler of men, a baseball strategist and a developer of players.

Stoneham is Tired

But what is equally important to Horace Stoneham at the moment is the fact that O'Doul is a personality.

President Stoneham is tired of running third in New York, both in attendance and popularity.

The spectacular Larry MacPhail in Brooklyn has taken the play away from the Giants, and the Yankees' record-wrecking comeback makes things worse.

Owner Stoneham selected O'Doul as the man to restore the prestige, glamor and box office magnetism the Polo Grounders enjoyed during the illustrious days of John J. McGraw.

While baseball men respect Terry as a sound baseball man, he has never gone out of the way to win the good will of the customers.

Baseball to Terry is frankly a cold-blooded business proposition, and the fans insist upon considering it a sport.

Years ago every youngster's ambition was to grow up and play baseball for John McGraw and the Giants.

The men of McGraw were idols, not only of New York, but of the nation.

Keep Giants in Cash

This and a good share of their following the Giants lost under Terry despite an exceptionally fine early record under his leadership. Terry's personality, or lack of it, was reflected in his club's business-like but drab and too cautious performances.

When the outfit tumbled into the second division in 1939, attendance tumbled perceptibly. There have been many lonely afternoons in the lee of Coogan's Bluff. The Giants no longer are the road attraction they were in the good old days.

The Brooklyns have kept the Giants in cash the last two seasons and are doing the same thing this trip. Last season one third of the Giants' total home attendance was attracted by the 11 games in which the Dodgers appeared. This year, for example, the Giants and Dodgers played to 83,240 persons in two days at the Polo Grounds, the Memorial Day double-header playing to 59,487. All reserved seats were sold weeks in advance.

May Accompany O'Doul

Terry hasn't developed a ball player to speak of in nine years.

The club is loaded up with old men and castoffs—and so is the principal farm in Jersey City.

In eyeing O'Doul, Stoneham also has his bulbs on Ferris Fain, 20-year-old left-hand throwing and hitting first baseman now batting .346 for the Seals. Five big league clubs offer a big price for this kid whom O'Doul already compares with George Sisler.

Charley Graham, head of the San Francisco club, has a $100,000 tag on him.

Another O'Doul product in San Francisco who is ready for the big show is Erolan Fernandez, a hard hitting shortstop.

Fain and Fernandez may accompany their boss to New York.

Horace Stoneham opened negotiations with O'Doul as far back as the minor league meeting in Atlantic last December.

O'Doul is now doing considerable unofficial scouting for the Giants with an eye toward building the Polo Grounders of the future.

To O'Doul For Help

Though financial conditions compel the San Francisco club to operate on a shoestring, O'Doul has done very well.

His teams play daring baseball. Ball players swear by him and his clubs hustle. He is firm but

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 27.

The Golden Text was, "O praise the Lord, all ye nations . . . For his merciful kindness is great toward us: and the truth of the Lord endureth for ever" (Psalms 117: 1, 2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "These are the things that ye shall do: Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbour; execute the judgment of truth and peace in your gates" (Zechariah 8: 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The best sermon ever preached is Truth practised and demonstrated by the destruction of sin, sickness, and death. . . . Knowing this and knowing too that one affection would be supreme in us and take the lead in our lives, Jesus said, 'No man can serve two masters.' We cannot build safely on false foundations. Truth makes a new creature, in whom old things pass away and all things are become new" (p. 201).

Dust storms in America were caused by the World War in Europe, since farmers broke the soil on all available acreage and set the stage for wind erosion, because of high-priced wheat.

No known infection among hens is transmissible through their eggs to humans.

Former Mayor of Peoria Now Door Keeper in Senate

Washington—(AP)—From mayor of a city of 100,000 population to doorkeeper of the United States senate may seem a comedown, but David McCluggage thinks it's all right.
McCluggage ought to know. The jovial, rotund little 61-year-old bachelor left Peoria, Ill., in May of this year after completing four years as mayor and took up the job of senate doorkeeper. He did not seek re-election as mayor.
"I thought I'd like to go to Washington and work," he explained, "so I asked the Senator (Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois) to see what he could do for me, and here I am."
The "here" in this case was a swivel chair just outside one of the three main entrances to the floor of the senate. It is now McCluggage's "office." His duty is to see that no one enters unless he has a right to, and to keep the general public from proceeding down the hallway beyond the door. McCluggage handles the job with the diplomacy of a veteran politician. He interrupted an interview as a party of sight-seers walked down the hall.
"I'm sorry, ladies," he explained almost apologetically, "but you can't go beyond here."
Likes New Job
McCluggage likes his new job, although the approximately $1,600 salary it pays annually is far less than he was accustomed to as mayor of Peoria.
"It is quite a relief not to have so much responsibility for a change," he said. "Being mayor of any city the size of Peoria involves a lot of responsibility and a lot of headaches. I like it here and I think I'll stay awhile. I've wanted to live in Washington ever since 1912, when I stopped here while attending the Democratic national convention in Baltimore."
McCluggage's friends "in the know" don't doubt that he'll stay here for some time, but they would be surprised if he stayed in the relatively minor job of doorkeeper for any length of time. Something better is expected to be offered him before long.
McCluggage has been in politics all his life. He served in the Illinois house of representatives from 1920 to 1934, worked in the internal revenue office in Peoria and Chicago for six years, was assistant superintendent of old-age pensions in 1936, and served as mayor from 1937 to 1940.

Amboy provided valuable aid by furnishing water to the Franklin booster tank with the Amboy portable pump. The local truck had power enough to shoot the water to the top and then some. The belfry and roof of the church were damaged by the lightning and flames, several holes being burned in the roof. The damage was estimated at several hundred dollars. It was necessary to recall the local fire department about five o'clock Saturday morning to extinguish a small blaze which started after the three departments left. Olivia's Poundage Shook Studio; She Hustled for Girdle

By MARY HALE

Hollywood, July 26—(The Special News Service)—When Olivia de Havilland, who is five feet three inches tall and ordinarily tips the scales at a mere 110 pounds, showed up at Paramount weighing 126, the studio was shaken to its foundations.

"You'd have thought the sky was falling", chuckled Olivia, who obviously enjoyed the consternation. "Edith Head, the designer, had phoned that she was delighted to work with me because she knew my figure would be no problem. You should have seen her expression when I entered the fitting room".

This situation was mitigated by a girdle, a very tight girdle.

"I could hardly breathe", sighed Olivia. "And I know what the critics will say when they see 'Hold Back the Dawn': 'De Havilland's performance was very good for a pigeon'. That's what I looked like—a fat little pigeon".

That was practically Olivia's first experience with a girdle. Reason for extra poundage was Olivia's appendectomy, after which her doctor wouldn't allow her to exercise or diet. But Olivia said she wasn't worried because she knew that as soon as she was able to swim and ride horseback again the avoirdupois would melt away.

But in a chateau chignon hostess gown with a narrow corset belt, her plumpness was becoming. The extra 16 pounds were well distributed, and her waistline looked almost as slim as when she played Melanie in "Gone With the Wind".

Melanie, however, might have winced at the way Olivia tosses out words like "hell" and "damn" and "guts".

She referred to "guts" when she spoke of stage roles she'd have liked to play before attempting pictures. Most of the "damns" and "hells" came out when she described her altercations with the Brothers Warner about a year ago, when she was suspended for refusing to appear in "Saturday's Children" and "Flight Angels".

"I told the studio those scripts were lousy and wouldn't make money", The De Havilland big brown eyes flashed with indignation. "And the box-office proved I was right".

Olivia confesses that she worries a lot about getting good parts. Also about her extravagance and taxes.

Almost 200 sites in North Carolina have yielded gold and silver deposits.
